lators with nine members and three alternates present in the absence of the president. The president, the elected president, Mrs. L. Babb was appointed for the day. The creed was read and the Secretary Mrs. M. Plaxton read the minutes of the previous meeting which were accepted as read. The returns for the cooking and sewing classes were $19.00 which was very good. The next item was a game to the next meeting to be held at a children's home to help make their Christmas a bit brighter. The prayer was read by the pastor. "Turkeys" was read by Mrs. Gatten. Lotteries and emblems of all the provisions were given also and a very interesting entertainment was given by Jenny Plaxton. Mrs. Tondur receiving first prize and Mrs. Albert Kitchin second. After the meeting was over the refreshments were served by the hostess which everyone enjoyed. The Christmas meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. A. Dickout Dec. 15th.

On motion of Councillor Mitchell,

CHILLERS
This week very mild weather has been rapidly melting the snow of last week which was about a foot deep. Here's hoping the mild weather will continue for some time.

We are sorry to report that Jackie Shadbolt has been a patient in the local hospital and we wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. E. Carter went by train on Saturday to Irma to visit with his grandfather, Mr. Fenton, who is very ill there.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Shadbolt were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mathewson.

On motion Council was regularly adjourned.

MARRIAGE PREFERRED

It is cheering to find that some of the old basic urges still continue with formidable strength in this otherwise topsy-turvy world. A recent Canadian poll served to confirm the lurking suspicion that even in this day of emancipation young women favor marriage as a life job. Seventy-five per cent of girls between 15 and 24 years of age have voted in favor of a happy marriage rather than a successful business career.

The mounting divorce rate does not seem to diminish the initial appeal of marriage though it does reflect on its lasting qualities. Perhaps the young people of today have less patience in trying to bring happiness into the state of marriage. Perhaps the complexities of modern life require special training for marriage. Certainly girls who are preparing for a future in the business world seem to give much more time to advance preparation than when they commit themselves to the lifetime job of wife and mother. In the above mentioned Canadian poll the girls who have had a taste of business life are even more inclined to think of marriage as the most desirable goal than the younger dreamers who are still in school.

The term "career" in connection with women seems to be used very loosely nowadays. Almost any girls doing one of scores of jobs in the business world is referred to flatteringly as a "career" girl. Young men of the same age group, probably occupying much more responsible positions are never spoken of as "career" men. All they have is a job. Nine times out of ten all that the girls have in cold fact is a job. Why all the glamorous build-up for the femmes? It doesn't seem an honest valuation of services.

In spite of all the glamor, these girls do declare staunchly and frankly that they want marriage. Good for them, but are they prepared to turn all their intelligence toward making it a success?

A further angle on the natural desire for matrimony comes from other sources. Last week Dr. Charlotte Whitton announced that Canada is facing a shortage of women. This was headlined in papers from coast-to-coast, and probably caught the eager eyes of 50% of the young women in the Dominion. Not a doubt in the world that they cried in ecstasy "Where is the shortage in Canada? Fly me to the spot." But as one young woman declared sadly "I wish I hadn't read anything but the headline. It gave me a glow, but when I read the story it talked about shortages in nurses, in household services, in factories, in offices and in teaching; with only 150,000 of us lined up each year for marriage. That's not enough."

And that's the way it is in the world of women. So long as the men are willing the institution of marriage is going to flourish and according to Dr. Whitton the shortages in teaching, nursing, factories and such will grow more acute. "There just aren't enough women coming on" says Dr. Whitton. And you won't hear any moaning from the girls at that bit of news.

SLIPPING AWAY FROM DEMOCRACY

Apathy is an ugly word and should not be used too hastily on just any occasion the public seems to fall in its duty. The public's duty in a democracy, as we see it, is to elect its representatives in a 100% vote and then show continued interest in what its public servants are doing. Usually, in this day and age, the servants act like the masters. Our government officials down at Ottawa seem to do pretty well what they like, quite oblivious to the people's wishes except around election time. Orders-in-council, by-passing the legislature, bureaucracy—these are the words used to describe much of what goes on in Ottawa.

We are firm champions of municipal government and we like to hold up our community boards as examples of true democracy. These local boards, like the town council and the school board, are close to the people. And usually the people are close to their municipally-elected bodies, cognizant of the improvements being made because they can be watched and seen—maybe a new school, or a new sidewalk, or an extension to the sewer system.

Now we are beginning to wonder whether such grassroots democracy is losing its luster. Recently, the percentage of persons bothering to vote at local elections has fallen off alarmingly. At last week's annual meeting in Lacombe of two school sub-divisions, there were two ratepayers present. That averages out to one ratepayer for each sub-division, an area which includes a large slice of territory to the north and west, and the whole town of Lacombe. This is apathy on the part of local citizens. They have shown indifference toward school affairs which affect the welfare of 2,000 students within the large Lacombe school division. Approximately 45% of this year's town budget was used for educational purposes. Only two taxpayers wanted to learn what happened to that $50,000.

The trustees can interpret the poor attendance in one of two ways. Either the ratepayers they represent are completely satisfied with the way in which school affairs are being operated, or they don't know and don't care. The latter we honestly don't believe, for the public has shown a definite inclination to fulfill its obligations toward education in the past.

We want to see democracy work in our democratic country, but it falls right at home where it should work the most successfully, some other ideology will slowly and surely take its place. —The Lacombe Globe.

OUTLINE OF HISTORY (IN THREE CHAPTERS)

Joe Rutledge Says

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

A CONTRAST OF JUSTICE

In Czechoslovakia only a week or so ago, tens of thousands of people were torn from their homes and families and sent to labor in the mines. They weren't lawbreakers or revolutionaries. They were priests and ministers and government officials and merchants and professional men and intellectuals. The closest they could come to discovering a reason was that as members of the "bourgeois" class with some little to lose, they were presumed to be out of sympathy with a minority government, which had achieved power through violence and maintained it the same way. There were no warrants for their arrest, no habeas corpus to protect them, no defense lawyers to study their cases. They were sentenced without formalities by officials who had created what laws were necessary to meet the case.

As this was happening eleven defenceless communists were charged with advocating the overthrow of the United States government by violence. For almost nine months these men were on trial while they and their defence lawyers ranted and raved and defied the presiding judge and did their utmost to break him and make a travesty of the trial. Every pretence of the law was wrapped about these eleven dinky defendants. More than a million dollars was spent to assure the unwavering fairness of the trial.

After those nine months of constant badgering, Judge Medina still could charge the jury no prejudice and no difference of opinion would be permitted to qualify the full rights of the accused. He pointedly outlined these rights in his charge. The right to advocate by peaceful and lawful means the changing of the law and constitution; to criticize the President of the United States and the Congress; to charge that the government was exploiting poor and worthy workers for the benefit of trusts and monopolies; to assert that World War II was an unjust and imperialistic war, but that after Russia was invaded it became a just war. They had a right to claim that Russian democracy was superior.

I've Been Thinking

About Some False Economies
H. G. Teskey

In the September 20 edition of the Edmonton Journal we read the large type headline, "Alberta: Surplus $1,528,502 For Year". Some of you, overcome by your great good fortune in being an Alberta citizen, may not have read on. Had you done so, you would have noted that this exceeded the surplus of the previous year by only $187,619; that the accumulated surplus had reached the sum of $24,997,981. Mr. Huckle, provincial auditor, said that this accumulated surplus would "actually run about $40 million if the money taken in from the cash bonus oil deals in the past few months is included."

"Revenue from the petroleum and natural gas purchase price for 1948 during the year amounted to $720,597, while that of rentals and royalties amounted to $2,769,938". Approximately $12½ million dollars revenue from our oil alone! This accounts for the large surplus. And just think, we have only started to tap our oil supply. We are already cutting back on production because there is as yet but a limited market. An oil pipeline from our field to Lake Superior is being projected at a cost of around $110 million. This will give some indication of the great quantity of oil that this province is known to possess.

And oil is not our only great resource that will continue to add more and more to government revenue. There are many other minerals, known and unknown. There are great farming areas still undeveloped and by the application of irrigation water and intensive farming methods, production from this source can be increased several fold. Already the best fields for American democracy, and that no have adversely affecting communism should be passed. The presiding judge expressly charged that if it were decided that the accused did no more than teach and advocate in the realm of ideas they must be acquitted. Only if there could be no reasonable doubt that the accused had plotted and intended to overthrow the government by force and as speedily as it might be accomplished, could they be held guilty as charged. Seven hours later the jury did so decide.

This contrast of justice is too striking to be overlooked—the thousands of men and women suddenly whisked away, without charge, without trial, without protection—and the laborious, tempered judicial process that, in the face of flagrant abuses, still insisted that, in the interests of all, rights of the inarticulate must still be sacred. The one is the way of communism the other of democracy.

of the south supply 10 per cent of all the sugar consumed in Canada. They can easily be made to supply 100 per cent.

In the north and west are great timber resources. A pulp and paper mill company is planning to install a huge factory here. We already have a major packing plant industry that can be greatly expanded. There is a large supply of undeveloped water power in the mountain streams that can be used by industry. The tourist attractions of Alberta are unexcelled anywhere in the world.

And I pause here in the enumeration of our great wealth only because the list is unending. No part of the world has a brighter future than has this Province. We have every reason to be optimistic and enthusiastic. We can build for the future liberally and expansively with confidence. It is only necessary that our leaders shall have a vision of our future greatness, the courage to forge ahead and plan for great things, and the wisdom to see the road that we should follow if we are to build strongly and lastingly.

We are indeed a fortunate people. Or are we? I must pause to reconsider. Something is lacking. Here and there I see false economies that will stifle our efforts and weaken the structure of our state. We are economizing in the development of the greatest of all our resources, our young people. They are not being given a satisfactory state in life. We do not seem to be concerned about the education of our children because we are negligent in the matter of selecting teachers to instruct them. Whereas we should be dividing the finest of our young men and women to enter the teaching profession, we lower the standard of admission to our Faculty of Education and offer liberal bribes to anyone who will enter.

But the crowning act of negligence and indifference was the decision of the Provincial Government to cut off about $400,000 in grants to school districts this year. At a time when the school division and districts are trying to improve education by raising teachers' salaries and constructing new buildings; at a time when the divisions and districts have actually drained their own tax resources dry; at a time when the Provincial Government is building up huge surpluses (as mentioned); at such a time the government reduces its support to education.

Why is this done? Is it that the government wishes to pay off the provincial debt and thus get rid of paying the much hated interest that we have heard so much about in the past few years?

We have saved $24 million for the purpose, but I see no move being made in that direction. Is it that in miserly fashion it likes to see its piles of money grow and grow? Or is it a hint to school boards that they have let salaries get high enough?

Anyway, it is a false economy—one of the falsest of economies—and can only have disastrous results. Though the amount is small, in principle the action is shortsighted, unprogressive and, perhaps, stupid. A government befitting a great and prosperous province would speedily correct such an error and make liberal amends.

Dear Sir,

"As the twig is bent, so the tree will grow." How often we have heard this proverb, and how many times we have seen its practical application in real life. If father plays hockey, and is keenly interested in this sport, the inevitable and natural result will be that Junior finds himself on skates almost as soon as he is able to walk. Maybe mother is enthusiastic about riding and it is not long before little Mary wants to ride also. While there are exceptions to this rule, as to all others, in the main part it still holds true. Whatever their hobbies, likes and dislikes, parents mould the lives of their children along those lines. With this idea in mind, we ask the question:

"What are your reading habits? Are the people of this community making full use of the excellent library in their midst, and encouraging their children to do the same? Most parents are very cognizant of the harm that is to be found in the average dime comic and are acutely concerned about combating this contributor to juvenile delinquency. What simpler and easier way of doing this can there be than to substitute for these comics, a good book from the library? To date, there is only an average of 40 to 50 children's books being taken out every Saturday. Usually each child takes two, so that means that only about 20 or 25 children visit the library, when it is open. Surely there are more than 20 or 25 children in this community who are interested in books and reading! Why not give the children a library card in their stockings for Xmas and open the doors to the whole world of fun and knowledge which is found between the covers of a good book.

Another suggestion—could we not arouse and promote more interest and enthusiasm for this matter by having a group, such as the town council or Chamber of Commerce, sponsor a competition for a poster advertising the library or some phase of its work? Let's get behind the "Young Canada Book Week" campaign and give our children all the advantages in life that we possibly can, in this respect also.

BRUISES TO LIVESTOCK

Reports from Packing Plants this fall show that many farm animals arriving for slaughter are covered with bruises. Farmers, truckers and shippers should take great care in loading and unloading stock. The practice of using clubs to get cattle up chutes and into cars is one of the worst for bruising animals. Losses due to bruising must be paid by someone and it probably results in a lower market price to everyone.

BARLEY IN WEED CONTROL

Barley is much better than wheat or oats as a winter crop for weeds. For wild oat control it must be seeded late and after a couple of wild oats have been killed by cultivation. Oil Barley needed after June 15 will keep ahead of wild oats and mature early enough to harvest. Farmers that are going to seed barley next spring should look for seed supplies early. A lot of barley and oats is being shipped out of the country now.

PESTS TAKE TOLL

At this time of year lice multiply rapidly on cattle and poultry. Stock cannot make economical gains if vermin are sapping their strength. Remedies are available at every drug store. Many forms of Derris Powder and DDT are available for dusting on animals and birds. Big dividends will be derived from winter feeding if these pests are cleaned up now.

REGISTERED SEED

The supply of registered seed usually becomes exhausted shortly after the new year. Farmers wishing this type of seed place their orders early with their elevator agents to insure getting some pure seed. Price lists and order forms are available at all elevators.

RUST PROOFING FARM MACHINERY

Medical research, as carried on by scientists in laboratories throughout the United States, is essential to the conquest of tuberculosis. Grants by the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliates to aid research are made possible by the annual sale of Christmas Seals.

RUST PROOFING FARM MACHINERY

Rust is the red devil material found on iron or steel after exposure to moisture in the presence of air. In order to remove rust from any surface that is to be polished, some of the iron or steel has to be removed, says A. Wenhart, Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, Sask.

Various oils and lubricating materials around most farms may be used for rust prevention for short periods. But unfortunately most farm equipment receives no treatment of any kind.

A number of rust preventative materials have been developed for successful industrial use, and are now being made available for farm use. These materials may be applied by brushing or spraying, and when used as specified they will protect polished surfaces indefinitely. These materials are available from large oil companies, along with recommendations regarding methods and rates of application.

Every farm equipment owner owes it to himself to spend a little time cleaning up his equipment and applying some effective rust preventive. Hours of irritating work and possibly expensive repairs may be saved when the equipment is used again at the beginning of a new season.

REWARD FOR CLUB WORK WELL DONE

One of the most successful years of Junior farm club work in Canada will culminate in the 19th Annual National Club Week at Toronto, November 12-18, during the period of the Royal Winter Fair. A record number of at least one hundred Junior members will attend, all of whom have been declared provincial champions in their respective projects.

Though they will be kept busy in Toronto competing in national judging competitions to select the champion champion teams in clothing, food, dairy, beekeeping, poultry, grain and potato projects—it will not be all work.

The group will stay at the Royal York Hotel and during the week will be honoured for their achievements. They will attend the Royal Winter Fair, participate in conducted educational tours, be entertained at banquets and visit Niagara Falls, Hamilton and the National Capital. Among the new features this year will be a dance to follow the Annual Dinner, and a bus-tour of Toronto after church services on the Sunday, with a social gathering in the evening.

Undoubtedly a highlight of the week will be a visit to Government House, Ottawa, where the club members will be received by His Excellency the Governor General and Lady Alexander. The trip to the National Club Week is the highest honour in Junior club farm work. Since 1921 over one thousand

CANADIAN CREDIT UNIONS

Credit Unions—co-operative savings and lending institutions—are quite a big business in Canada, and their developments are increasing. In 1949 there were 644 credit unions with a total membership of 151,554 and assets of $20 million. Last year there were 598 with $20,654 members and assets of over $20 million.

The first credit union in North America was started at Levis, Que., fifty years ago, and until 1936 development was slow. From that time on, however, the idea spread quickly from coast to coast and many were incorporated and recognized in every province.

In the bulletin published by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Credit Unions in Canada, 1948, J. E. O'Meara of the Economics division describes the operations of these institutions. The object is to organize a union where there is a common bond of association among members. Thus a common bond is quite frequently found among rural folk and the largest number of credit unions are in rural communities. The unions also operate fairly extensively in urban centres and among occupational groups.

Mr. O'Meara points out that "much of the growth and expansion is due to the work of credit union leagues and federations which are in existence in every province. These encourage and assist new credit unions to obtain charters and guide and direct them in procedure, policy, and accounting methods." Through the federations and leagues, credit unions may buy supplies on a co-operative basis, and other benefits are extended which make for the stability of the individual credit union.

Membership in Canadian credit unions increased by 71,469 during 1948 and total assets by some $23 million over the total for 1947. Loans made to members during the year totalled $120,235,317. A breakdown of this figure by purposes for which loans were floated was not possible because of lack of complete information. But on that portion which could be analyzed, indications are that more than half of the borrowing was for the purchase of machinery, buildings and improvements, land payments and mortgages, trucks and automobiles—in that order. Almost all of the borrowing was for agricultural purposes.

FARM NOTES FROM ABROAD

Trade Agreements
An agreement has been signed between Yugoslavia and Western Germany whereby the former will provide goods to the value of $15.6 million and Germany to supply $23 million. Germany will import tobacco, a variety of foodstuffs, wood and other miscellaneous items and will export industrial products.

Italy and Argentina on October 9, signed a one year trade agreement to the value of $100 million. This is a supplement to the agreement of 1947. Argentina will supply Italy with bread and coarse grains, wool, meat, hides, butter and cheese in exchange for agricultural machines and industrial products. Argentina has also agreed to export to Italy 500 thousand tons of wheat.

U.K. Calf Subsidy

It is reported officially that the calf rearing subsidy will be extended in the United Kingdom to cover calves born up to September 30, 1951. The subsidy will be at the rate of 45 s head for males and 25 s for females born after October 1, 1949 and before October 1, 1950. The calves must be certified as suitable for beef production or as dairy replacements.

N.Z. Tobacco

The New Zealand Tobacco Board has been negotiating with the Government for the diversion of the Motueka River in order to bring a further one thousand acres of land under cultivation for tobacco. It is estimated the project would cost about £100 thousand and £75 thousand to be paid by the Government and £25 thousand by the Tobacco Board.

WORLD MILK PRODUCTION

Milk production in 1948 in the major producing areas of the world was at about 90 per cent of pre-war output the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations reports. There was a small increase in milk production in Europe in 1948—primarily a result of higher yields per cow brought about by a much improved feed situation. While total European feed supplies in 1948-49 were still below the pre-war level, they nevertheless were far higher than in the preceding year, when very bad weather was the rule.

The 1948 increase in milk production in Europe were general. Every country except Czechoslovakia, Denmark, and Sweden showed an increase as a result of the material gain in feed and boys and girls have taken part in this annual event, many of whom are themselves providing leadership in club activities. There has been a record enrolment in club farm work in Canada this year—a total membership of 45,854 in 3,749 clubs. The previous high was 47,047 members in 1946 and 45,223 in 1948.

AVAILABLE FOODSTUFFS

The increase in Europe, plus an increase of about 4 per cent in Oceania, was enough to offset a small decline in total milk production in North America. In the United States, the world's largest milk producing country, production was maintained at 97 per cent of the 1947 level, despite the fact that cow numbers were at the lowest point since 1930. This was accomplished through higher yields per cow. In Canada, as a result of a decline in the output per cow, production fell off three per cent, even though cow numbers increased.

For other parts of the world where milk production is important there is a scarcity of information. In South American countries there appears to have been a substantial increase in milk output between 1934-35 and 1947 or 1948. This is probably what happened in some of the African countries also.

Before the war, the USSR was one of the largest milk producing countries. During the war it acquired additional important dairying areas, and it appears that total milk production in 1948 may have been in the neighborhood of 10 to 20 million tons—about 75 per cent of the pre-war production in present boundaries.

Sheila M. Forrest, Ryley

Hello Homemakers:
And this week I have another new pamphlet entitled, Color in Your Home. This deals with color schemes in all rooms and how to do a little remedial work if necessary. Also suggestions of colors you may add to go with colors you already have. It seems that one household task we never lost sight of is the laundry. No matter what happens we generally find this is a task which must be done.

Don't forget that an overnight soak for extra soiled work clothes will be aid in getting them cleaner on wash day. Warm water is best for soaking the greasy clothes which should be rubbed with soap before soaking. White clothes may be soaked in cold water. Rub lard on machine-grease.

The football soared through the air and fell into the barn yard, right at the rooster's feet. A look of wonder came into his eyes as he surveyed it from all sides. Then he gravely pushed the ball into the henhouse and faced his harem. "I'm not complaining ladies," he said, with an all-inclusive bow, "but I just want you to see for yourself the work that is being done in the other yard."

stains and then soak with warm water and soap.

This is one place where your homemade soap can really go to work on the job. It gets at the really dirty clothes better than any soap you can buy.

Sometimes you will find a number of stains to be removed before you can do your washing. We have an excellent pamphlet on stain removal with a suggested list of materials to use in the process.

If your tea towels have rust stains on them use salts of lemon or an Oxalic Acid solution. Either is poisonous so should be carefully labelled and placed out of reach of children. Lemon juice with warm water will work but for an old stain you will definitely need a chemical.

Fruit stains may be a little stubborn

BIBLE MESSAGE, Acts 1:5-12. The God of our fathers called up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins. And we are his witnesses of these things; and so is the Holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

LEGION NOTES

Dedication of wreaths: Under the above heading The Legionary has this to say: "Each wreath should be dedicated to the memory of those who gave their lives for freedom. It must not, therefore, be displayed year after year."

This branch of the Legion is considering this matter thoroughly, and there is room for deep thought. At present we feel that on some fine spring morning they should be taken to the cemetery and after a simple service of dedication be either laid on the Soldiers' Plot or used to decorate the individual graves of departed comrades—especially unrequited graves.

One thing is certain, they should not be allowed to simply disintegrate in dark basement or dusty attic or garage, better to leave them to the sun, wind and rain on the last resting place of a fallen comrade.

LIBRARY NOTES

"NEW WINDS ARE BLOWING"

by Molly Castle

The problem that confronts Peg Harigan is one with which many women have had to cope—the cooling of her husband's love, notwithstanding her efforts to be the sort of wife she thought he wanted her to be, to make his home a place of pleasantness and peace, and to be a good mother to his two children. Emerging from the cocoon of her own overprotected childhood, Peg faces new winds neither stubbornly or drifting, but with courage, if at times her strength does not equal that courage, yet there does remain with her, fortunately, the conviction that she must be, and can be, true to herself. It is that conviction that not only bolsters her self-esteem (a quality without which life can be virtually intolerable) but restores her sense of values as well.

And what of Steve Harrigan? With all his intelligence, his eager concern with problems and causes and questions, and ideas, he has been away from him a read. Too busy saving the world, he has no time to solve his difficulties at home.

Slowly and painfully Peg learns where the trouble lies. She discovers that she doesn't have to stop loving Steve; she couldn't do that anyway, even if she tried. But she does have to stop loving him in the wrong way. To her own surprise (as well as to Steve's) she finds herself saying and meaning, "I think I'm through following you around the world every time you whistle. If you want me to take your path, you'll have to come after me."

"LET LOVE COME LAST"

by Taylor Caldwell

William Prescott was a man swept by currents which he did not recognize and could not resist, ruthless and sentimental by turns, intuitive, passionate, and filled with a profound longing for love. Wealthy but still scarred by his experiences of poverty, he was lonely with the deep bitter loneliness of a man who knows his friends are friends in name only. Yet though his wife, Ursula, loved him, it was to their children that William turned with the hope of satisfying the devastating hunger within him.

Through these children, Tom and Julia and the others, the main theme of "Let Love Come Last" develops—the conflict between the older and the oncoming generations, the hard-won wisdom of maturity and the shallowness and greed, interested only in themselves, the Prescott children pitilessly exploited their parents to satisfy their desires. They saw William only as a fool consumed by the weakness of his love for them, and as a fool they despised him. Nor was Ursula able to stem the tide of hate. They conspired against him, children against father, the conspiracy forming another conflict which, though subtler, is no less intense. This discussion centers in the business world and the machinations of Eugene Arnold, son of the man William ruined, Eugene has waited with a spider's patience for his web of revenge to tighten about the hearts of those whom he hates. At last, as tension mounts in the great Prescott home, it is Ursula, who loves him, and Oliver, his adopted son, who stand finally as the last shields between William and the disaster which threatens.

Of more than 2,875,000 Canadians who paid income taxes in 1947 only 17,000 had an income over $10,000 a year.

A PAINLESS PROCESS

Immunization is about as painful as a mosquito bite and the after-effects when there are any—are almost always extremely slight. Immunization provides almost 100 per cent protection from whooping cough and diphtheria. There are no known cases of children dying from these diseases after being immunized. Immunization is free at public health clinics across the land. Protect your child this easy, safe way.

That's what I used to say, and it was true. Sometimes I'd dream of the day when I'd have time and leisure to do all the things I wanted to do, but I had to admit I wasn't doing anything about it except dream. I never seemed to be able to put anything aside.

Now, I know those dreams will come true. They're guaranteed.

Through a simple saving plan which, strongly enough, I've found involves no hardship, I am now saving money for the first time in my life.

and in washable materials may require a bleach with javella water. For old stains of fruit, tea, coffee or grease you may use a solution of Potassium Permanganate. You may purchase a 1 per cent solution or crystals at the drug store. This can only be used on white cotton or linen. The solution makes a brown stain on the material which itself must be bleached with oxalic acid.

This year the teen-agers have gone all out for corduroy. This material may be washed like cotton cloth. Remove spots before washing and use warm water and soap suds—no cake rubbing. Rinse well and then wring by hand with a squeezing motion rather than a hard wring. Shake; shape garment and place on a padded hanger to dry. Brush when dry with a clean soft brush until nap is well fluffed. Rip out hems in a colored corduroy garment, because thickness allows color to streak and settle. Like seersucker—drying in wind will give a more natural appearance.

BEANS HELP THE FOOD BUDGET

Beans are a valuable part of the diet in some sections of the country but seldom used in other localities. Stories of lumber camp life always emphasize the great pots of fragrant beans and the real enjoyment by the men of this satisfying hot food. Baked beans are a Saturday night special in many farm families and would soon become a favourite in others if they were cooked right.

Perhaps the chief reason why the homemaker overlooks beans in her menu planning is the length of time required to develop that special deep brown flavour. There are, however, other and quicker ways to cook beans and still have the "come-on" odour and satisfying flavour and texture.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, have developed a few recipes which will appeal to the homemaker on account of the ease of preparation and to the family because of the real goodness.

Baked Bean Soup

1½ cups canned tomatoes (1 28-oz. can)
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 small slice bay leaf
1 teaspoon powdered cloves
2 cups baked beans
½ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Mix tomatoes, onion, bay leaf and cloves together. Simmer for 5 minutes in a covered saucepan. Remove bay leaf, add beans, water, salt and pepper and simmer for 10 minutes. Press mixture through a sieve. Reheat and serve. Yield: six servings.

NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF THE GAS RESOURCES PRESERVATION ACT being chapter 2, Statutes of Alberta 1949 (Second Session) and

IN THE MATTER OF THE APPLICATION OF NORTHWEST NATURAL GAS COMPANY AND ALBERTA NATURAL GAS GRID LTD.

TAKE NOTICE that an application will be made on behalf of Northwest Natural Gas Company and Alberta Natural Gas Grid Limited under the Provisions of The Gas Resources Preservation Act, chapter 2, 1949 (Second Session), to the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board for a permit to remove gas or cause it to be removed from the Province of Alberta for use, or consumption elsewhere than within the Province.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the application will be heard at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon on the 24th day of November, A.D. 1949, at the Court House in the City of Calgary, in the Province of Alberta.

DATED at the City of Calgary, this 25th day of October, A.D. 1949.

1,000 IN PEELE ISLAND PHEASANT HUNT

Counting their birds, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greeley of Madison, Wis., relax after first day of 19th annual pheasant hunt on Pelee Island, Lake Erie. More than 1,000 Canadian and U.S. hunters participated.

Brutus and lost their best defence, once again appear slated for the runner-up spot. They seem to have sufficient player strength to outlast every other club with the possible exception of Toronto.

Montreal Canadiens' chances took an upswing when they persuaded starry Elmer Lach to retire, and, they still have one of the best-scoring forwards in Maurice (Rocket) Richard so the club could slide into third position.

There's little to back up this guess but Hawks possibly could move into fourth place through the work of trim skater, It all depends on whether the club's shaky defence tightens up and whether the speedy forwards start to back-check and keep Himek from being snowed under by rubber.

The last two positions seem like the biggest toss up. New York Rangers and Boston have little to establish themselves as threats and likely will battle it out for those two spots out of the playoffs.

Leafs' most powerful opponent is unquestionably, if they can lick that and also overlook the "What's the matter with the Leafs" cry that will pop up when they hit a slump, they look like better than even-money bets to take the honors again.

SLEEP COMBATS FATIGUE
One of the most cruel tortures known to man consists of forcing a person to remain awake many hours without rest. Everyone needs regular sleep to stay healthy and few adults are able to get less than seven or eight hours. Sleep combats fatigue which leads to poor quality work, accidents and low resistance to disease. Your attitude of work and enjoy life depends on getting enough sleep. Take all you need.

Chili Beans
1 lb. ground raw beef
½ cup chopped onion
2 cups cooked white (navy) beans
1 cup chili sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 small bay leaf
4 whole cloves
½ teaspoon pepper

Brown beef and chopped onion in a dry pan, stirring constantly. Add cooked beans and stir for about 5 minutes. Add chili sauce and seasonings and simmer, covered, for 15 to 20 minutes. If mixture thickens too much during cooking, additional vegetable water or tomato juice may be added. Yield: six to eight servings.

Sports Camera

The season is young with a long time to grow but already the crammed standings in the National Hockey League are indicating that the team with reserves in depth will be the one to beat.

That team at this time appears to be once again the Stanley Cup champions Toronto Maple Leafs, who have more experienced major league players and fewer individual stars than any other club.

The Leafs were said to be lucky last season, when, after finishing fourth, they went on to take the cup. They were lucky in that they drew the badly bruised Boston Bruins in their half of the semi-finals and then took of the battered Detroit Red Wings in the final after the Wings' bruising series with Montreal Canadiens.

But the Leafs had taken the trophy in the two previous seasons in much the same manner. Their depth in players had prevented them from becoming too crippled by the individual player too over-worked. Now that the schedule has been stretched to 70 games it emphasizes even more the need for a team to have player depth.

Four of the NHL clubs, including Toronto, were involved in player trades during the off-season and again the Leafs benefited.

They traded three players on their Pittsburgh farm club for Bob Solinger, a minor leaguer who promises soon to gain major league class. Chicago Black Hawks also have benefited with the acquisition of Frank Brimsek, the goal-tending wizard from Boston. But Chicago is generally weak in other spots.

Boston Left Short
Boston, in turn, has lost strength with the departure of Brimsek. They gained a top-notch defenceman in Bill Quackenbush from Detroit but gave up three players, Clara Martin, Pete Habsandro and Jim Peters, in return. Then, too, they lost a rugged rear-guard through the retirement of Johnny Crawford.

Detroit Wings, although they gained little with the acquisition of the three

AFTER HOURS

A change is often as good as a rest, and this applies particularly in the field of recreation. Office workers and men who sit or stand all day at machines may be tired without actually expending much physical energy. For these people moderate after-hours exercise in the form of games or hobbies is often more useful and health-giving than a mere rest.

BOOST FEEDING PROFITS by Cutting Feed Costs

with a JOHN DEERE Hammer Mill

It's easy to see that lowering the cost of feed will increase your profits from feeding livestock . . . and that's just what happens when you grind your own feed with a John Deere Hammer Mill.

By using a John Deere to convert home-grown crops into feed which livestock relish, you save the cost of a custom grinder.

John Deere 10- and 14-inch Hammer Mills turn out more feed per hour with less power because they're big-capacity, light-running mills. The grinding unit consists of three sets of step-cut, reversible hammers mounted on a hardened-steel rotor, which runs on New Departure ball bearings for faster, easier grinding. See us soon about a time- and money-saving John Deere Hammer Mill.

ON KINDERGARTEN

Ruth Johnson, radio writer, commentator and actress, will work with Dorothy Jane Goulding this year as one of the teachers in Kindergarten of the Air. A Monday to Friday program for youngsters of pre-school age. Ruth Johnson comes to Kindergarten of the Air thoroughly experienced in radio for children—during the past three years, in addition to her more general broadcasting activities, she has been associated with children's programs as both writer and broadcaster.

GRADING OF ALBERTA VEGETABLES

For some time, Alberta potatoes have been sold by grade. Not only has this been of considerable convenience to the consumer, but it has also been of considerable advantage to the grower. The advantages accruing from such grading have now been extended to include other vegetables, and regulations are in effect providing for grading of onions, turnips, rutabagas, beets, carrots, parsnips and cabbage. The standard of quality provided by grading offers protection to the consumer and a means of encouraging improved quality of our products. Improved quality fosters greater demand. The importance of this will become more and more evident as expanded irrigation facilities provide for an increase in the production of vegetables which may have to be marketed outside the province.

Retailers and producers of vegetables in Alberta are urged to acquaint themselves with these new regulations governing sale of vegetables. Copies of the regulations are available on request from the Field Crops Branch, Alberta Department of Agriculture, Edmonton. Information can also be obtained from local vegetable inspectors.

USE CARE IN CHOICE OF FERTILIZER

Farmers who intend to use commercial fertilizer on their grain crops should be guided by experimental results from Agricultural Institutions. For example, M. W. Witter, Field Crops Commissioner, Alberta Department of Agriculture, increases in yield by the use of commercial fertilizer are, within limits, proportional to the amount of phosphate taken up by plants. There are two types of commercial fertilizer presently being sold in Alberta for use on grain, and their relative value should be appraised according to quantity of available plant food each contains and the price a farmer is required to pay for it.

The most commonly used fertilizer is of granular form and is drilled with the seed from an attachment on the seed drill. The other type is a liquid fertilizer which is mixed thoroughly with the seed and the seed then planted with the ordinary drill. This liquid fertilizer is comparatively new and has not been thoroughly tested by farmers.

On the basis of phosphate alone, assuming all the phosphate applied per acre in liquid fertilizer is used by the crop and only 20 per cent of the phosphate in the dry or granular kind is being used, the granular form will provide the same quality of phosphate as the liquid fertilizer at about one tenth the cost.

From trials to date with liquid fertilizer at the University of Alberta and field trials at the University of Alberta and field trials at the University of Saskatchewan, experimental results have indicated that liquid fertilizer applied at the rate recommended by the distributor has not increased yields over check plots, whereas the granular ammonium phosphate when used as recommended has, over a period of years, given substantial and profitable increased returns.

EXPLAINS FEED STUDY

Dr. Cyril J. Watson, Division of Chemistry, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, will present a paper by invitation at the 5th International Congress of Zootechny in Paris, November 3 to 10, 1949. The paper will summarize the results of an extensive series of investigations carried out by the Division of Chemistry on digestibility of feeds by ruminants. The series of experiments was begun in 1939 and has now been completed. The paper will consist of reports on the effect of the plane of nutrition and association on digestibility. It will recommend that in the feeding of farm animals the most satisfactory system of evaluating feeding stuffs, is by means of digestible nutrients.

SELECTING FOR HATCHABILITY

Hatchability of total eggs set in approved hatcheries has averaged in the vicinity of seventy per cent in recent years. As a breed, Barred Plymouth Rocks are usually about average in respect to hatchability when compared with other breeds. Nutrition, incubation and methods of handling and storing the eggs all affect the percentage of fertile eggs which will hatch, and all are largely under the control of the flock owner and hatchery operator. The presence of lethal hereditary factors in some birds may be another cause of the failure of some eggs to hatch.

It is apparent that per cent fertility plays an important part in the percentage of total eggs which will hatch. About ninety per cent or more of all hatching eggs produced are expected to be fertile, but low fertility in some flocks is a serious economic problem. In searching for the cause of low fertility, nutrition of the flock during growth, as well as at maturity should be examined to see if it is satisfactory for the development of vigorous birds. Good range conditions and proper housing facilities in the breeding pens are also conducive to high fertility. At the Dominion Experimental Station, Fredericton, N.B., eggs Leonard Griesbach, fertility tests indicate that extremely early maturing males are likely to be small and should therefore be discarded. Only vigorous males which show good comb development and other well developed male characteristics when not more than six months of age, should be selected. These tests also indicate that in flocks where fertility has become a problem the introduction of new blood may be desirable. This action is more likely to be necessary in small flocks than in large ones where there are great opportunities for suitable selection.

WOMEN MAKE SUCCESS OF BIG CO-OPERATIVE

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa—Women farmers in the Port Elizabeth district are now selling all their produce through their own co-operative, run by women for women.

About 12 years ago the Women's Agricultural Association started a home market in a small back room. It has expanded to a big market in the centre of the city and another in a suburb, with other branches planned. "We are proud of our co-op, which is the largest in South Africa, and I think that we have proved we have as much business acumen as men," said Mrs. Phil Loomer, president of the local branch of the association.

Women farmers in the district are branching out into all phases of agriculture and the co-operative sells eggs, butter, vegetables, flowers and poultry. The town members supply cakes and jams.

The co-op usually sells produce at a penny cheaper than the price in most shops.

THE DANGER OF FEAR

Fear of financial loss through long hospitalization, doctor's bills and loss of work often deter people from checking with a doctor when they suspect they are suffering from cancer. But fear is one of cancer's best allies. It often delays diagnosis and treatment of curable cancer until it is too late. Don't let fear prevent you from making sure.

Science turned their backs on the target

Science is playing an increasingly important role in Canada's new Army. In heavy anti-aircraft, for example, complex radar equipment predicts to within a few feet exactly where the target is and will be. The gunners, their backs to the target, fire with amazing accuracy by instrument.

Training men in the use of modern scientific equipment is a major requirement in Canada's new Army. Thousands of young men are attending some of the finest schools in the country, specializing in electronics, radar, radio and telephone. In addition, there are openings for clerks, drivers, mechanics and many other trades.

New higher pay, good food and quarters, trades training and the opportunity for advancement make the Canadian Army Active Force one of the most attractive careers open to young men today. You are eligible if you are 17 or over and can meet Army requirements. Visit your nearest recruiting office soon for full details. Bring certificates of birth and education with you.

Dr. W. H. Swift Gives Feature Address

Big Crowd Attends Official Opening Of New Chauvin District School

Favored with a fine day, the official opening of the new Chauvin School was a well attended event. Indeed it seemed to be, for it marked the culmination of many years of discussion and effort by the ratepayers and the trustees alike.

Gathering outside the building, the crowd waited until the time set for the ribbon cutting ceremony, and as the chairman, Dr. H. O. Polkins led Dr. W. H. Swift up the steps to the door a hush descended and cameras were gotten ready for action.

With a few brief words Dr. Swift cut the ribbon, and the door was opened to the school. The crowd entered the auditorium where the balance of the day proceedings were carried out.

Dr. Polkins opened the program with a few introductory remarks after which Rev. H. Olsen gave the invocation. In a well prepared address he spoke of the importance of our young folks, and the need for their adequate education, both in an academic and a spiritual sense.

He called on God for His blessing on the new school, and for the guidance of those who were in charge of the education of its pupils.

Mrs. A. E. Keith then rendered a solo "Bless This House" accompanied on the piano by Mrs. C. W. Cranston.

Dr. Polkins then called on Mayor J. C. Christie for the address of welcome on the part of the Village of Chauvin. Mr. Christie, after welcoming the honored guests and all those in attendance, referred to the new school.

"We have been greatly in need of this new school for many years," he said, "but the building we have exceeds all our expectations."

He expressed the appreciation of the people of the district for Dr. Polkins' work in connection with the new school, by presenting him with the new school building. When we went into the agreement with the division a few years ago we went in with the understanding that the school would be built as soon as possible. We had already established a fund for that purpose, and had continued to pay the additional levy.

Referring to the cost of the building program he said that with an assessed valuation of about $2,000,000 the repayment of the $50,000 actually borrowed for the construction of Chauvin school could be paid with interest in ten years by an added tax of only one mill.

Wainwright and Irma school, which had cost more than was financed on a rate one mill for each building.

Mrs. S. Spence then spoke on behalf of the Home and School Association of the Home and School Association, expressing her regret at not being able to attend the school opening, and extending their best wishes to the enterprise.

"Speaking in behalf of the new building," Dr. Polkins referred back to the winter of 1943, when a visiting official asked why it was not possible to have the annual meeting of the school building. Mr. Nicholson, then the local trustee, quickly informed him that the meeting could be held in the school building if he wished to press to do so.

Now the vision had become a reality, but not until after many delays. Explaining the process by which the new school building, Mr. Nicholson, had tried in February 1948 to bring plans from the government, but none of a suitable nature were obtainable. Then had followed a period of discussion, until finally the present plan was arrived at.

Mr. Griffiths then was punctuated with many spots of humor which made it even more enjoyable.

Reminding all present that the annual meeting had been called at an early date, he expressed a hope that all could be present.

He then referred to the great part that Mr. Simonson had taken in the supervision of the building of the new schools in the division, and in their planning.

Mr. S. Simonson, superintendent of the division, had taken in the supervision of the building of the new schools in the division, and in their planning.

The divisional board, the local board and the architect had discussed plans at some length before the final layout was arrived at, he said. The problem was different with each school. In this case it had required a general purpose building, arranged to handle all grades, from 1 to 12.

He then gave a brief outline of the facilities incorporated in the new building. Upstairs in the north-west corner, there was the high school room, glassed off from the science room, in such a way that the teacher could supervise the work in both rooms at one time.

The science room was well equipped and provided with spacious cupboards and drawers for the storage of materials and equipment. It was also provided with a fume cabinet, piped directly to the chimney.

In the south-west corner was the intermediate room, housing grades 7, 8 and 9. Next to this room, and also separated by a glass panel was the typing room, intended for use of the primary pupils.

The room on the north-east corner houses the second division, grades 4, 5 and 6.

Also on the main floor are washrooms for both boys and girls, providing shower baths and modern toilet and wash facilities. There are also the teachers' and principal's rooms.

Downstairs there is a classroom in the south-west corner, a shop or classroom in the north-west corner, a lunch room and auditorium.

He was pleased to note that almost all the children in the Chauvin area were now enjoying the advantages of the new school building.

The new school, he said, was already showing its influence in the conduct of the children.

Referring back to the planning days, he recalled that even the school children had been consulted on the proposed plans, with sketches being drawn on the blackboard for their consideration so that suggestions might be made for improvements. He recalled that one child had asked the question as to whether there would be escalators between the floors for the convenience (and pleasure) of the pupils.

One feature of a modern school, he said, was that good things at school made the students inclined to demand more of the school. This was a part of the child education program and one derived satisfaction that it was being accomplished.

Referring to the fact that he said that if you give people what they want they won't be so worried about the cost. He made reference to the fact that the whole thing was a debt to the district.

He then presented Dr. H. O. Polkins with a picture of the new school.

Dr. W. H. Swift, Deputy Minister of Education, was then called upon to give the feature address of the day.

Promising that his remarks would be brief, he said that we were all in the building here to participate in the celebration. This was the day on which the building was officially opened, and we were present to discuss, to hear about it, and to convey our thanks to all those to whom they are due.

He said he felt it very desirable that this sort of thing should be done. We must remember that it is a privilege to hear from their representatives, and express their thanks to the trustees who have worked for them.

THE WEEK IN OTTAWA

by the Canadian Press

Two widely-diversified subjects—defence and real-estate—held the spotlight in Ottawa last week.

Both of the subjects, however, have one thing very much in common for Mr. Canadian. They hit him where it hurts most—right in the pocket-book.

As the week ended, defence held the attention of the Commons, but tenants were still grumbling about increases in rent ceilings.

Defence Minister Brooke Claxton outlined Canada's defence problems in a 20-page white paper and a statement as he began piloting a record $183,000,000 peacetime defence budget through the Commons.

By what the Progressive Conservative member for Nanaimo, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. termed a "sad and ironical coincidence," the defence budget was placed before the House on Remembrance Day—the day set aside for the Dominion to pay tribute to the memory of her gallant men and women who sacrificed their lives in two world wars in the cause of freedom and peace.

Mr. Claxton said in the white paper that the 18 months since the Red coup in Czechoslovakia have produced a "material reduction in the fear and threat of immediate war."

But the announced development of an early warning radar system to protect vital centres and areas in the Dominion was one of numerous indications the white paper gave that the government has no intention of allowing this cold war hell to modify or delay our long-range defence plans.

Look To Russia
Mr. Claxton reiterated in the Commons that Canada's defence policy is based on the assumption that the "only possible aggressor is Russia."

He said that any war would be a world war involving all western people. "The best way to prevent war is to confront the forces of Communism with such strength as to deter them from attack," said the minister. "To provide such strength requires the co-operative efforts of the western nations, including the United States and Canada."

For that reason, he said, Canada welcomes the Atlantic Pact.

The white paper showed that Canada is gradually organizing a civil defence skeleton organization on which an expanded version could be built in emergency.

That war, and preparation of defence against a possible aggressor, is expensive, was brought home in the white paper which listed such costs for war equipment as $150,000 for a fire-control radar set; $5,000,000 for a submarine destroyer and $2,000,000 for a long-range four-engine bomber.

This year Canada is spending $91,000,000 on defence construction and equipment, $75,000,000 on new aircraft and overhauls. A single unit of the early-warning radar network costs between $250,000 and $350,000.

Agreed On Price
None of the speakers opening debate on the defence estimates questioned the price the Dominion must pay for security. But they did question the basic defence policies.

Maj.-Gen. Pearkes, one of Canada's leading army officers, charged that Canadian defence plans are based on an obsolete concept of gradual mobilization when war strikes.

He expressed "grave doubts" that the regular forces, now about 45,000 men strong and close to their authorized strength, can fulfill the commitment made up for them.

C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell supported the budget but argued that it should be complemented by efforts to raise living standards and to remove the misery and want which breeds war.

Canada would have to keep on maintaining forces until the basic causes of war were eradicated. The present total of defence expenditure should be matched by spending on social services and welfare and education to build up the people.

John Blackmore, colorful Social Credit member for Lethbridge, stressed the vulnerability of Canada's control of industry. He said a smart enemy could gain control of the whole country by seizing a few strategic parts of Ontario and Quebec. He urged industrial decentralization and a regional defence set-up which would split the country into a number of self-sufficient areas that would be capable of fighting alone if isolated by the enemy.

Mr. Blackmore also said that war could only be prevented if there was world economic stability. The productive countries were not doing all possible to maintain that stability.

How Much Rent?
The most hotly debated question in Ottawa and throughout Canada last week was the rent increases announced the week before by Finance Minister Abbott.

The opposition parties knew the announcement was unpopular with a large section of Canada's voters and they pulled no punches as they flayed government benches.

Finance Minister Abbott and the Liberals stoutly defended the increases and showed they had no intention of yielding. Government leaders said they knew the decision to allow landlords to increase rentals from 20 to 25 per cent above 1941 levels would be unpopular. But they maintained that such increases were only just and fair to the landlords.

The original announcement gave no indication that rent increases would be fixed on the 1941 level, and when it was made, landlords and tenants immediately started trying to puzzle out just how much of an increase it really was.

Canada's rental administrator Owen Lobley finally cleared up the bewilderment in a 1,500-word statement that proved of little comfort to tenants.

He fixed the maximum rental boosts for unheated self-contained flats, apartments and houses at 15 per cent of current rents and said heated accommodation could be boosted 22 per cent. Roomers can have their rents increased by a straight 20 per cent. It was the first increase that owners of rooming houses had been allowed since rents were frozen in 1941.

The increases go into effect next Dec. 15, but for most of the tenants, leaving on a month-to-month basis, the boosts won't be paid until next Feb. 1.

Dear Mrs. Kowalsky:

This will acknowledge receipt of your petition, dealing with the determination system in connection with sex perverts. I may say that this matter received quite a little attention during the present session and a committee in the Department of Justice is now reviewing the Criminal Code and this matter is to be taken care of by that committee.

I trust this information will be of interest to your organization.

Yours very truly,

LONELY IN FREEDOM, WOMAN PREFERRED JAIL

LIVERPOOL, England—A lawyer described a feeling of loneliness after being released from jail as "the most terrible thing" in the life of Mrs. Doris Laka, 34.

"After starting a life of crime at 18 she has spent more of her life in prison than out of it," said defence councel W. E. Blackburn when the smartly-dressed Mrs. Laka appeared on burglary charges.

"The only friends she has are those who has met in prison. She has been in so often that she is not afraid of going there, but is terrified of coming out because of the complete change she has to effect."

The judge sent Mrs. Laka back to jail for another five years.

BRITAIN SEES RISE IN FUR COAT PRICE

LONDON—In the near future Britain's utility fur coats will be "virtually extinct."

When the present stocks of furs and fur coats in the country are exhausted, prices will be nearly doubled.

The only exception will be coats made from beaver lamb or other skins which do not come from dollar countries.

"Prices of better fur coats such as mink, muskrat, Canadian squirrel and beaver will rise tremendously," said the manager of a big Kensington fur store.

"It will be impossible to make coats at the price stipulated by the Board of Trade."

Prosperity Curlers Hold Successful Dance

The Prosperity Curling Club held a very successful dance on Friday, Nov. 18th. The weather was fine and a large crowd was in attendance. During the evening the draw was made for the electric light plant, which the curlers suffered. The lucky ticket holder was Mr. A. J. Spence of Ribstone. Mr. Charlie McKensie won the Hampshire rooster which was donated by J. P. Hepburn. To win the rooster you had to guess his weight. We hear Charlie's rooster has started laying eggs, some rooster!

Dancing was carried on till the wee hours of the morning, everyone reporting a good time.

Card of Thanks

The Prosperity Curling Club wish to take this opportunity to thank all those who donated money in aid of their club. Also those who sold and bought tickets on the light plant and anyone who helped in any way to make their dance a success.

Prosperity Curling Club.

"The Great Invitation." — Isaiah 55:1-11.

Memory Selection: "Bless ye the Lord while He may be found; call ye upon him while He is near." — Isaiah 55:6.

God seeks men; the initiative is always with Him. His object in the search is to get home to their hearts a proposal to put His resources at the command of their faith.

God wants, not yours, but you. He offers Himself in Christ to you in order to complete in you and do with you the good that He planned when He called you into being. As Paul taught we are not saved by doing the works of the law; we are saved through faith in Christ in order that we may be able to obey the will of God.

God offers men that which gives enduring satisfaction as against the tantalizing and temporary provisions of the world. (Isaiah 55:1-3). Men whom the prophet had in mind when he wrote were Jews of the second or third generation of exiles, and who had prospered in Babylon. The call sounded out for their return to the land of their fathers to restore God's worship and rule. This meant leaving the rich plains of Babylonia for the poverty of southern Palestine. Many were reluctant to part with their substantial gains. It was, therefore, to members of the Chosen Race called to fulfil their destiny as a nation, but who were content with what their exiles' land provided that this offer and appeal was made.

God reminds these prosperous people that nothing earth can give is permanently satisfying; the world's bait can only mock the hunger and thirst of the soul; He offers instead that which gives lasting satisfaction. Someone said the other day that the Grace of the present hour is for gain and security; at any cost, get what the world offers. The Gospel's answer is that the gratification that these things bring cannot last, and that they cannot satisfy the deepest in you. God offers that which builds up your soul and fits you into the eternal order.

There is nothing vindictive in God's dealings with men. His highest triumph is turning the sinful man from his sin and making the person who had been profligate in evil, profligate in virtue. God's pardoning mercy is "the ever present natural force upon which the earth depends for its life and fruitfulness."

In relation to population Canada's export trade was 50 per cent greater in physical volume in 1948 than in 1923.
